ab initio – from the beginning ab origine – from the origin ab ovo – from the egg/beginning addenda – things to be added, list of additions ad finem – to the end ad hoc – to or with respect to this (object); said of a body elected or appointed for a definite work ad libitum – at pleasure, as much one pleases ad nauseum – to the point of disgust or satiety ad rem – to the purpose; the the point adsum – I am present; here!

ad valorem – according to the value advocatus diaboli – devil's advocate; a person chosen to dispute before the papal court the claims of a candidate for canonization æquo animo – with an equable mind; with equanimity ære perennius – more enduring than brass or bronze a fortiori – with stronger reason alter ego – other self anguis in herba – a snake in the grass; an unsuspected danger anno urbis conditæ – in the year (or from the time) of the founded city (Rome).

ante/post meridiem – a.m. and p.m. (before/after noon) a posteriori – from effect to cause; empirical a priori – from cause to effect; presumptive arbiter elegantiarum – a judge or supreme authority in matters of taste arcanum imperii – state secrets argumentum ad hominem – an argument to the individual man, i.e., to his interest and prejudices ars est celare artum – it is true art to conceal art ars longa, vita brevis – art is long, life is short bis dat qui cito dat – he gives twice who gives quickly bona fide(s) – good faith (in good faith) carpe diem – enjoy the present day; improve the time casus belli – that which causes or justifies war caveat emptor – let the purchaser beware (he buys at his own risk) ceteris paribus – other things being equal circa – about cogito, ergo sum – I think, therefore I am coram populo – publicly; in public corpus delicti – the body of the crime corrigenda – things to be corrected; a list of errors credat Judæus Apella – let Apella, the superstitious Jew, believe it; I won't credo quia absurdum – I believe because it is absurd, or contrary to reason cum grano salis – with a grain of salt; with some allowance de facto – in point of fact; actual or actually de gustibus non est disputandum – there is no disputing about tastes

Dei gratia – by the grace of God de jure – from the law; by right delenda est Carthago – Carthage must be destroyed de mortuis nil nisi bonum – (say) nothing but the good of the dead de novo – anew

Deo gratias – thanks to God de profundis – out of the depths deus ex machina – a god from a machine; used in reference to forced or unlikely events introduced in a drama, novel, etc., to resolve a difficult or awkward situation; derived from the use of deities in the ancient drama dies iraæ – day of wrath Dominus vobiscum – God be with you dramatis personæ – characters of the drama or play dulce et decorum est pro patria mori – it is sweet and glorious to die for one's country dum spiro, spero – while I breathe, I hope dum vivimus, vivamus – while we live, let us live ecce homo – behold the man!

editio princeps – the first printed edition of a book ego et rex meus – I am my king emeritus – retired or superannuated after long service e pluribus unum – one out of many; one composed of many (motto of the U.S.) errata – errors; list of errors est modus in rebus – there is a medium in all things et alia (et. al.) – and others; and elsewhere et cætera or et cetera – and the rest et id genus omne – and everything of the sort et tu, Brute! – and you also, Brutus!

ex cathedra – from the chair; with high authority excelsior – higher, taller, loftier exempli gratia (e.g.) – for example; such as exeunt omnes – all go out (or retire) exit – he goes out ex nihilo nihil fit – out of nothing, nothing comes ex officio – in virtue of (his) office ex parte – from one party or side ex pede Herculem – from the foot we recognize Hercules; we judge the whole from the part experto crede – trust one who has experience ex post facto – after the deed is done; retrospective ex situ – opposite of in situ ex uno disce omnes – from one judge of the rest facile princeps – easily preeminent; indisputably the first facilis est descensus Averni – the desent to Avernus (hell) is easy festina lente – hasten slowly fiat justitia, ruat cœlum – let justice be done though the heavens should fall fiat lux – let there be light fides Punica – Punic (or Carthaginian) faith; treachery fidus Achates – faithful Achates (a true friend) finis coronat opus – the end crowns the work flagrante delicto – in the commission of the crime; red-handed fons et origo – the source and origin fortiter in re – with firmness in acting fortuna favet fortibus – fortune favors the bold furor loquendi – a rage for speaking furor scribendi – a rage for writing gaudeamus igitur – so let us be joyful genius loci – the genuis (or guarding spirit) of the place hic et ubique – here and everywhere hic jacet – here lies hinc illælacrimæ – hence these tears hodie mihi, cras tibi – mine today, yours tomorrow homo sum; humani nihil a me alienum puto – I am a man, I count nothing human indifferent to me horribile dictu – horrible to relate humanum est errare – to err is human idem – same as previously given ibidem – at the same place (in a book) id est (i.e.) – that is ignotum per ignotius – the unknown (explained) by the still more unknown impedimenta – encumbrances, luggage, baggage in æternum – forever in articulo mortis – at the point of death; in the last struggle index expurgatorius – a list of prohibited works in esse – in being, in actuality in extenso – at full length in extremis – at the point of death infra dignitatem – below one's dignity in loco – in the place; in the natural (or proper) place in loco parentis – in place of the parent in medias res – into the midst of things in memoriam – to the memory of, in memory in nomina – in the name of in omnia paratus – prepared for all things in perpetuum – forever in posse – in possible existence; in possibility in præsenti – at the present moment in propria persona – in one's own person in puris naturalibus – quite naked in re – in the matter of in rerum natura – in the nature of things in sæcula sæculorum – for ages on ages in situ – in its original position, undisturbed; in a localized state or condition in status quo – in the former state inter alia – among other things inter nos – between ourselves in terrorem – as a warning in toto – in the whole; entirely intra muros – within the walls in transitu – in the course of transit in vacuo – in the empty space; in a vacuum in vino veritas – there is truth in wine invita Minerva – against the will of Minerva (Athena); without genius or natural abilities ipse dixit – he himself said it; a dogmatic saying or assertion ipsissima verba – the very words ipso facto – by that very fact ipso jure – by the law itself jure divino – by divine law jure humano – by human law laborare est orare – to labor is to pray; work is worship labor omnia vincit – labor conquers everything lapsus calami – slip of the pen lapsus linguæ – slip of the tongue lapsus memoriæ – slip of the memory lares et penates – household gods laudator temporis acti – a praiser of past times laus Deo – praise to God lex no scripta – unwritten law; common law lex scripta – statute law littera scripta manet – the written word remains locum tenens – one occupying the place of another; substitute longo intervallo – by or at a long interval lucus a non lucendo – used as a typical of an absurd derivation: lucus, a grove, having been derived by an old grammarian from luceo, to shine; ”from not shining” lusus naturæ – a sport or freak of nature magna est veritas, et prevalebit – truth is mighty, and will prevail magnum opus – a great work mala fides – with bad faith; treacherously mare clausum – a closed sea; a sea belonging to a single nation materfamilias – mother of a family mea culpa – my fault; by my fault me judice – I being judge; in my opinion memento mori – remember that you must die; a reminder of death mens sana in corpore sano – a sound mind in a sound body mens sibi conscia recti – a mind conscious of rectitude meo periculo – at my own risk meum et tuum – mine and yours mirabile dictu – wonderful to relate mirabile visu – wonderful to see modus operandi – manner of working modus vivendi – manner of living; used of a temporary working agreement or compromise monumentum ære perennius – a monument more lasting than brass more majorum – after the manner of our ancestors morituri te salutamus – we about to die salute you; said by the Roman gladiators to the emperor motu proprio – of his own accord multum in parvo – much in little mutatis mutandis – with the necessary changes natura non facit saltum – nature does not make a leap nemine contradicente – no one speaking in opposition; unopposed nemine dissentiente – no one dissenting nemo me impune lacessit – no one assails me with impunity (motto of Scotland) ne plus ultra – nothing further; the uttermost point; perfection ne quid nimis – avoid excess nil admirari – to be astonished at nothing nil desperandum – there is no reason for despair nolens volens – unwilling or willing noli me tangere – touch me not non compos mentis – not of sound mind non est – he or it is not non est inventus – he has not been found non libet – it does not please (me) non liquet – the case is not clear non multa, sed multum – not many things, but much non nobis solum – not for ourselves alone non omnis moriar – I shall not wholly die non sequitur – it does not follow nosce te ipsum – know thyself nota bene – note well; take notice novus homo – a new man; one who has raised himself from obscurity nulla dies sine linea – not a day without a line; no day without something done nunc aut nunquam – now or never obiit – he or she died obiter dictum – a thing said by the way odi profanum vulgus – I loathe the profane rabble odium theologicum – the hatred of theologians omnia vincit amor – love conquest all things onus probandi – the burden of proof operæpertium est – it is worth while opere citato (op. cit.) – in the work cited (means you don't know the page number!) ora et labora – pray and work ora pro nobis – pray for us ore rotundo – with round full voice; well-turned speech

O! si sic omnia – O, if all things (were) so; O, if he had always so spoken or acted O tempora! O mores! – Alas for the times! Allas for the manners (or morals)!

otium cum dignitate – ease with dignity pace – by leave of; not to give offense to palmam qui meruit ferat – let him who has won the palm wear it pari passu – with equal pace; side by side par nobile fratrum – a noble pair of brothers; two just alike particeps criminis – an accomplice in a crime passim – everywhere; throughout; in all parts of the book, chapter, etc.

paterfamilias – father of a family; head of a household pater patriæ – father of his country pax vobiscum – peace be with you peccavi – I have sinned (or been to blame) per – for; through; by per contra – on the contrary per annum – by the year; annually per capita – by heads; for each individual per centum – by the hundred per diem – by the day; daily per fas et nefas – through right and wrong per se – by itself persona non grata – an unacceptable person plebs – the common people pons asinorum – the asses' bridge; a name for the fifth proposition of the first book of Euclid post hoc ergo propter hoc – after this, therefore, on account of this; subsequent to, therefore due to this: an illogical way of reasoning; believing that temporal succession implies a causal relation prima facie – at first view or consideration primum mobile – the source of motion; the mainspring principia, no homines – principles, not men pro bono publico – for the good of the public pro et contra – for and against profanum vulgus – the profane herd pro forma – for the sake of form pro patria – for our country pro rata – according to rate or proportion pro tanto – for so much; as far as it goes Punica fides – Punic or Carthaginian faith; treachery qualis rex, talis grex – like king, like people quantum libet – as much as you please quantum sufficit – as much as suffices quid pro quo – something in return; an equivalent quis custodiet ipsos custodes? – who shall guard the guards themselves?

quoad hoc – to this extent quoad sacra – as far as sacred things are concerned; for ecclesiastical purposes only quem Deus vult perdere, prius dementat – those whom God wishes to destroy, he first makes mad quod erat demonstradum – which was to be proved or demonstrated quod vide – which see quorum pars magna fui – of which things, I was an important part quot homines, tot sententiæ – many men, many minds rara avis – a rare bird, a paragon reductio ad absurdum – a reducing to the absurd; a method of proof where a proposition is shown to be true by demonstrating the absurdity of its contradiction requiescat in pace – may he rest in peace res angusta domi – narrow circumstances at home; poverty res gestæ – things done; exploits; history respice finem – look to the end resurgam – I shall rise again rus in urbe – the country in town sanctum sanctorum – holy of holies sartor resartus – the patcher repatched; the tailor patched or mended satis superque – enough, and more than enough satis verborum – enough of words; no more need to be said scripsit – wrote (it) sculpsit – engraved (it) secundum artem – according to the art or rule semper fidelis – always faithful semper idem – always the same seriatim – in a series; one by one sic – thus, so sic itur ad astra – such is the way to the stars or immortality sic passim – so here and there throughout; so everywhere sic transit gloria mundi – thus passes away the glory of this world sicut ante – as before similia similibus curantur – like things are cured by like simplex munditiis – elegant in simplicity sine cura – without charge or care sine die – without a day being appointed sine qua non – without which; something indispensable siste, viator – stop, traveler sit tibit terra levis – light lie the earth upon thee spero meliora – I hope for better things splendide mendax – nobly untruthful; untrue for a good object sponte sua – of one's (or its) own accord status quo – the state in which; the existing condition stet – let it stand; do not delete suaviter in modo, fortiter in re – gentle in manner, resolute in execution sub judice – under consideration sub rosa – under the rose; confidentially sui generis – of its own peculiar kind; in a class by itself summum bonum – the chief good sunt lacrimærerum – there are tears for things; misfortunes call for tears suppressio veri – a suppression of the truth sursum corda – lift up your hearst suum cuique – let every one have his own tabula rasa – a smooth or blank tablet te judice – you being the judge tempus fugit – time flies terminus ad quem – the term (or limit) to which terminus a quo – the term (or limit) from which terra firma – solid earth; a secure foothold terra incognita – an unknown country tertium quid – a third something; a nondescript timeo Danaos et dona ferentes – I fear the Greeks, even when they bring gifts tot homines, quot sententiæ – so many man, so many minds toto cælo – by the whole heavens; diametrically opposite tu quoque – you also ubi supra – where above mentioned ultima Thule – most distant Thule; utmost limit urbi et orbi – to the city and to the world utile dulci – the useful with the agreeable ut infra – as below ut supra – as above vævictis – woe to the vanquished vale – farewell varium et mutabile semper femina – woman is ever a changeful and capricious thing veni, vidi, vici – I came, I saw, I conquered (Cæsar's message to the Senate when he conquered Pharnaces, king of Pontus) verbatim et literatim – word for word and letter for letter verbum sat sapienti – a word is enough for a wise man via, veritas, vita – the way, the truth, the life vice versa – the terms of the case being interchange or reversed; conversely videlicet (viz.) – that is to say, namely (literally: one may see) vide – see vide ante/infra/post/supra – see before/below/after/above vide ut supra – see what is stated above vi et armis – by force and arms; by main force vincit qui se vincit – he conquers who conquers himself virginibus puerisque – for maidens and boys vis a tergo – a force from behind vis inertiæ – the power of inertia; resistance to force applied vis medicatrix naturæ – the healing power of nature vis vitæ – living force; energy vivat regina (rex)! – long live the queen (king)!

viva voce – by the living voice; orally vox et præterea nihil – a voice and nothing more; sound but no sense vox populi, vox Dei – the voice of the people is the voice of God vulgo – common